Students can't escape Big Pharma

Study. Weak policies governing conflict of interest leave medical schools vulnerable to industry influence

The first comprehensive study of conflict-of-interest guidelines at Canada's 17 medical schools has uncovered big holes in the policies intended to restrict the influence of the pharmaceutical industry.

Despite the pervasive presence of Big Pharma on medical-school campuses, policies regarding conflict of interest are "generally permissive," the study found, raising questions about the role commercial interests are playing in educating Canada's doctors.

"The faculty and student relationships with industry are very poorly regulated," said study author Adrienne Shnier, a PhD candidate at York University's School of Health Policy and Manage-

Quoted

"That's problematic ... because when you see a diploma on the wall in a physician's office from one of these reputable schools, you expect that they've received a balanced education."

Study author Adrienne Shnier

ment. "This means that industry has the ability to influence the resources that are provided to medical students ... and influence the information that is taught to medical students."

Published on Thursday in the open-access, peer-reviewed journal PLOS ONE, the study ranked Canadian medical schools on the strength of their conflict-of-interest policies. Scores were based on guidelines in place as of September 2011 across 12 categories, including samples, curriculum and scholarships. Researchers searched university websites for policies and reached out to administrators for anything they'd missed.

With "restrictive" policies in all but three categories, Western University was ranked No. 1.

In more than half of all schools, however, the researchers found that policies were either "permissive" or nonexistent in most categories.

The worst offender was the recently established Northern Ontario School of Medicine (NOSM) in Sudbury, followed by the University of Alberta and Queen's University. U of T placed seventh.

"Most people don't expect that the biggest schools in the country and the most influential schools in the country actually scored some of the lowest (scores)," said Shnier.

Is smelly slaughterhouse planning move?

Owners of a foul-smelling downtown slaughterhouse that have publicly resisted calls for its removal asked the city to convert the site's zoning from industrial to mixed use last year — a step often taken by companies planning to sell to developers.

But Quality Meat Packers Ltd. insists it is staying put for the foreseeable future. "Right now there are no plans to move," said Jim Gracie, the company's vice-president of sales and marketing.

New subway signal system on the way

Up to speed. Unreliable 1954 system that crashed Wednesday will be replaced in five years, but not the 1966 Bloor line signals

Brace yourself — it's going to get worse before it gets better.

Wednesday morning's horrendous subway delay, caused by a failure in the 60-year-old signal system, was only the beginning. The scramble to fund and fix Toronto's aging subway will mean closures, delays and other headaches come fall.

Thousands of commuters were held up Wednesday morning when the signal system, installed in 1954, failed during morning rush hour, prompting an apology from transit boss Andy Byford and assurances that the TTC is fixing what it can.

"The system we have, given its age, is not reliable and is prone to failure," said TTC spokesperson Brad Ross. "It should have been replaced a number of years ago."

It didn't make the priority list, despite discussions, for years, he said. But a $500-million computerized signal system on the Yonge-University-Spadina line is now set for completion in 2018.

The system on the Bloor-Danforth line has been in use since 1966 but there's no money to replace it so far, said Ross.

"It is coming to the end of its useful life as well," he said.

Council is again mulling a Scarborough subway, with

'Train stop'

The current signal system relies on a circuit running on one of the tracks to alert trains behind to stop before getting too close. It also has a "train stop" that, should a train fail to obey a red signal, will force an emergency stop. It was an error in these devices, since replaced, that caused the 1995 subway crash between Dupont and St. Clair West that killed three people and injured 140.

Mayor Rob Ford tasking city manager Joe Pennachetti to find ways to pay for underground trains rather than the planned LRT at the end of the Bloor-Danforth line.

On Wednesday morning,

the track got wet during routine work and grounded out the circuit. That meant a red signal and crews down on the track, coaxing trains slowly into Bloor station to make sure they maintained a safe distance.

Under the new system, automated trains — which still include an operator — will be able to safely run closer together, hiking capacity on the overloaded line.

The TTC also needs to replace the track bed — also six decades old — in outdoor areas of the subway system, such as between Davisville and St. Clair.

TTC chair Karen Stintz said the 1995 crash led to nearly two decades of focus on the existing subway system.

Repairs and upgrades of the current system need to happen along with expansion, she said.

Liquor laws. Seniors' safety concerns aren't being heard among young residents, woman claims after meeting

jessica.smith@metronews.ca

Torontonians at a public meeting Thursday about drinking in Trinity Bellwoods Park expressed enthusiastic support for relaxing liquor laws in public parks.

Coun. Mike Layton called the meeting after some local residents complained about drinking in the park, and about 100 people turned out. After group discussions at tables set up in the community centre, a spokesperson for each group shared their views. The majority asked for more washrooms, more garbage cans and police enforcement of troublemakers, but not casual drinkers.

For example, local resident Mike Hook got loud applause for suggesting the city lobby the province to adjust liquor laws to allow for drinking and open alcohol containers, but keep laws and enforcement against public drunkenness and related problems.

Karen Harrison was among those complaining about drinking. She said seniors have become afraid of the park in recent years. She also complained that the meeting was full of young people, and not seniors like her, so their views weren't being heard.

14 Division Supt. Mario Di Tommaso said police launched Project Green Glasses to ensure public order in his division's parks last summer, and any recent enforcement isn't "a crack-down."

He said it's not for police to separate troublesome drinkers from safe drinkers, when drinking in public is against the law.

Over the past two months, his officers have written roughly 115 tickets in Trinity Bellwoods Park for alcohol-related offences, he said.

The alcohol-related problems at Trinity Bellwoods have included loud noise beyond midnight, drug use, as well as fights, he said.

Di Tommaso added there have been no sexual assault reports connected to the park. There was an alleged aggravated assault, but he would not say if alcohol was involved.

On June 27 police arrested 44-year-old Ben Metzger for allegedly pushing a cyclist off his bike.

"We've had broken beer bottles left behind," said Di Tommaso. "That's certainly a danger to all people and animals. We've also had condoms left behind, so it's that level of excess," he added.

Police board crafts report on cyclist 'dooring' incidents

The chair of the police policy board has drafted a report on keeping track of "dooring" accidents — when cyclists are hit by a parked car's door — which Toronto police do not currently track.

Last week, Torstar News Service reported that dooring incidents fall outside the police definition of a "collision" and so are not recorded.

Alok Mukherjee, head of the Toronto Police Services

Board, was out of the country Thursday and could not be reached for comment, but his senior adviser Sandy Murray said that Mukherjee took the issue "seriously" and that the report would be discussed at the next TPSB meeting on July 18.

It is not clear what the report says — it will be released with the meeting's agenda, which usually comes out several days before the meeting.

Toronto police keep no statistics on the number of doorings in the city. In 2011, there were 1,315 collisions involving bikes in Toronto. That includes zero doorings. "Realistically, there's no reason for us to track it, because it doesn't meet the criteria of collision," said police Traffic Services spokesperson Clint Stibbe. "If you said how many days a week is it sunny, we're not going to track that."

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

So what's a collision?

Toronto, York Region and Waterloo police define a collision as "the contact resulting from the motion of a motor vehicle or streetcar or its load that produces property damage, injury, or death." A car opening its door does not count as "motion."

YIMBY

"The park is many people's backyards for those of us who don't have backyards that can entertain 10 to 15 people at a time." Local resident Mike Hook

SIGNAL PROBLEMS THIS WEEK ILLUSTRATE THE SCALE OF OUR CHALLENGE

COMMISSION

On Wednesday, many riders suffered horrendous commutes along the Yonge line when signal problems occurred at Bloor Station at the height of the morning rush hour.

Having spent 90 minutes at Bloor assisting customers and supporting staff, I know only too well how angry our customers were at the extended journey times, inadequate information and general unpleasantness of the situation.

As soon as the problems began, we dispatched response staff to the affected location to find and fix the failure. Shuttle buses were arranged and additional customer staff were positioned at Bloor and other locations to assist with crowd control.

The root cause was a sustained drop in electrical current to the signal system in the vicinity of Bloor Station, caused, it would appear, by interference between the track and the signal rail.

So what are we doing to fix this?

First and foremost, there is an urgent need to replace the signalling and some sections of track on the Yonge line. This signal system is 60-years-old in some areas and while safe, it is worn out. We have plans to replace the signalling to make it more reliable and to allow more trains to run. This will not be easy to do as we need to keep customers moving while we undertake the work, but we have to bite the bullet.

In parallel, and more immediately, we need to get better at keeping you informed when things go wrong and at maintaining the equipment that we have to work with.

It's my job to make that happen and I will redouble this organization's efforts to improve.

TRACK WORK DIVERTS 501 QUEEN AND 502 DOWNTOWNER STREETCARS

The 501-301 Queen and 502 Downtowner streetcar routes are on diversion until 5 a.m., Monday, July 15, due to city infrastructure upgrades and TTC track repairs at the Queen and York intersection.

The 501-301 Queen streetcar will divert in both directions using Church St., King St., and Spadina Ave., before returning to normal routing.

The 502 Downtowner streetcar route normally terminates at McCaul Loop, but will now divert south on Church St., west on Richmond St., north on Victoria St., then east again on Queen St. and back to its routing.

As replacement bus service will not be provided, customers using the subway and requiring the 501-301 Queen streetcar should use King or St Andrew stations to board the Queen streetcar in either direction.

LATE OPENING THIS SUNDAY – ST GEORGE TO PAPE STATIONS

On Sunday, July 7, there will be a late opening on the Bloor-Danforth line due to scheduled track upgrades. A frequent shuttle bus service will be available, with Wheel-Trans buses available at Main and St George for customers with mobility issues. Regular subway service will resume at 12 p.m.

Muslim Brotherhood leader arrested

Egypt. Senior judge takes reins of the country as Islamist party reels under huge public backlash

Egypt's military moved swiftly Thursday against senior figures of the Muslim Brotherhood, targeting the backbone of support for ousted President Mohammed Morsi. In the most dramatic step, authorities arrested the group's leader from a seaside villa and flew him by helicopter to detention in the capital.

With a top judge newly sworn in as interim president to replace Morsi, the crackdown poses an immediate test to the new army-backed leadership's promises to guide Egypt to democracy: The question of how to include the 83-year-old fundamentalist group.

That question has long been at the heart of democracy efforts in Egypt. Hosni Mubarak and previous authoritarian regimes banned the group, raising cries even from pro-reform Brotherhood critics that it must be allowed to participate if Egypt was to be free. After Mubarak's fall, the newly legalized group vaulted to power in elections, with its veteran member Morsi becoming the country's first freely elected president.

Now the group is reeling under a huge backlash from a public that says the Brotherhood and its Islamist allies abused their electoral mandate. The military forced Morsi out Wednesday after millions of Egyptians nationwide turned out in four days of protests demanding he be removed.

Adly Mansour, the head of the Supreme Constitutional

Court with which Morsi had repeated confrontations, was sworn in as interim president.

In his inaugural speech, broadcast nationwide, he said the anti-Morsi protests that began June 30 had "corrected the path of the glorious revolution of Jan. 25," referring to the 2011 uprising that toppled Mubarak. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Repressive' policies?

Military cracks down on media

Egyptian authorities shut down four Islamist TV stations, banned the Muslim Brotherhood's newspaper and raided the office of Al-Jazeera's Egypt affiliate in a crackdown on media considered sympathetic to ousted President Mohammed Morsi, bringing an outcry Thursday from rights groups, who said the moves appeared to be an attempt to intimidate pro-Morsi media and shut off their viewpoints.

Among the shuttered stations was the Morsi25 channel, run by the Brotherhood. It went off the air Wednesday night just as it was airing pro-Morsi protesters chanting, "Down with military rule" after Egypt's military chief announced that Morsi had been removed.

The military's move came after four days of massive anti-Morsi protests demanding the country's first freely elected president step down.

In a statement, the Brotherhood said the shutdowns were a return to the "repressive" policies of Egypt's "dark ... ages."

The London-based Amnesty International called the shutdowns a "blow to freedom of expression."

Also targeted was Al-Jazeera Live Egypt, or Mubasher Misi, an affiliate of the Qatar-based Al-Jazeera TV network. Late Wednesday night, police raided the station's offices, detaining 28 staffers, Al-Jazeera said in a statement Thursday. All have since been released, except the managing director and the broadcast engineer.

Cops rev up search for missing girl

Madeleine McCann.
Scotland Yard keeps family's hopes alive as they search for multiple 'persons of interest' in 2007 disappearance

This March 2007 photo released by the McCann family shows three-year-old British girl Madeleine McCann. Detectives say it's possible that Madeleine, who vanished from a Portuguese holiday resort six years ago, is still alive.

MCCANN FAMILY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

British police say they have launched a full investigation into the disappearance of Madeleine McCann, and want to trace 38 "persons of interest" in the case.

Detectives say it's possible that Madeleine, who vanished from a Portuguese holiday resort six years ago, is still alive.

Scotland Yard said Thursday that 12 of the individuals of interest are British, and the rest are from a variety of European countries. The force says it is working with governments across the continent to find out more.

McCann vanished from a vacation home in Portugal's

Algarve region on May 3, 2007, days before her fourth birthday. The case has generated intense media interest.

Detective Chief Inspector

Andy Redwood said police "continue to believe that there is a possibility that Madeleine is alive."

Tories planned to reimburse Duffy: Court documents

Senate scandal.

Harper's then-chief of staff stepped up after cost estimate tripled

The Conservative party was going to cover the living expenses Sen. Mike Duffy had to pay back, but halted the plan when it was discovered he owed nearly three times as much as originally thought.

That was what lawyers for Nigel Wright, former chief of staff to Prime Minister Stephen Harper, told the RCMP last month when they met police to discuss the investigation into his $90,000 gift to the troubled senator, according to documents released by the Ottawa courthouse Thursday.

They also told the Mounties

Sen. Mike Duffy
THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

that Wright was not the only person in the Prime Minister's Office who was aware of the arrangement, but noted Harper was not in the loop.

RCMP Cpl. Greg Horton filed a document June 24, laying out his grounds for believing that records kept by the Senate would serve as evidence in a criminal investigation.

The document states the lawyers for Wright advised the investigators on June 19 that as chief of staff, Wright had the role of managing the Conservative party, "part of which was to deal with matters that could cause embarrassment."

After it was revealed that the cost would be $90,000, not $32,000, "Wright then offered to cover the cost for Duffy, believing it was the proper ethical decision that taxpayers not be out that amount of money."

The payment also came with two conditions: "Pay the money back right away (and) stop talking to the media about it," stated the document.

Glassing around on the streets of London

Wearable computers.

A Metro reporter tries Google's high-tech specs — and feels like a Borg

SCOTT TAYLOR
Metro in London, Ont.

It's pretty cool. That's about as tech savvy as I get, but it's also an apt description of the new Google Glass.

Most people have at least seen pictures of it by now. You wear the device like glasses, but use it like a smartphone.

There are no lenses, but there is a small screen above your right eye from which emanates the world — as both you, and Google, would like to see it.

Basically anything that can be done on a smartphone can be done with Google Glass. You can surf the web, make calls, send emails and texts, shoot photos and take video.

No, it's not a scene from Minority Report. It's Metro London's Scott Taylor trying out one of the hottest tech trends not yet on the market.

ANGELA MULLINS/METRO IN LONDON

Voices.com CEO David Ciccarelli is one of a handful of people in Canada known as Glass Explorers, who earned the right to be Google guinea pigs by winning a draw — and paying $1,500 for the product.

He's now showing the gizmo off to others, including yours truly from Metro London. So what's right and what's wrong with Google Glass?

At first blush, it's hard not to be impressed. The device doesn't feel intrusive because the frame is lightweight titanium and, as mentioned, there are no lenses to smudge. There's also no earpiece because sound is transmitted via bone conduction.

You look up to see the screen, which can be controlled, for the most part, with voice commands.

Initially, it looks to be about the size of a postage stamp, but it seems to grow and become easier to see with each passing second.

I watched video Ciccarelli shot at a zoo, hands-free of course, and easily found people on his contact list.

Looking at a photo of myself wearing it, though, I was reminded of the Borg from Star Trek: The Next Generation.

Yes, people will walk into trees and some will video people and things they shouldn't, but for a first stab at a wearable computer, it's pretty cool.

Carney watch. BoE explains reason for interest rate policy

Mark Carney is already causing ripples in Britain in his first week as governor of the Bank of England, even though his methods would be considered old hat in Canada.

Eschewing past practice, the British central bank went beyond simply announcing no changes to the 0.5 per cent key interest rate Thursday as it also published a statement explaining the reasoning and suggesting rates would remain depressed for some time.

The dovish statement had the effect of boosting equity prices in England and dropping the pound one cent to $1.51 US.

Under the previous governor, Mervyn King, the bank's Monetary Policy Committee would typically issue no comment when policy was left unchanged.

But instead the central bank gave some indication where matters are heading by declaring that "the implied rise in the expected future path of bank rate was not warranted by the recent developments in the domestic economy."

Compensation fight

Air Canada's bumping payout 'unreasonable'

Air Canada's proposed compensation for passengers bumped off domestic flights is "unreasonable," says consumer advocate Gabor Lukacs, who successfully convinced the Canadian Transportation Agency that passengers are entitled to higher payments. The airline proposed last week that passengers should be entitled to between $100 and $800 depending on their airfare and length of delay. THE CANADIAN PRESS

SNOWDEN'S NEXT MOVE A BLOCKBUSTER

This week's Metro List proves, once again, that life imitates art, truth is stranger than fiction, and I'm not making any of this up.

1 Superman is dating Penny from The Big Bang Theory. Great Caesar's ghost! Man of Steel Henry Cavill (although some critics who have seen the latest Superman movie call him the Man of Lead) is dating Kaley Cuoco, who plays Sheldon Cooper's desirable but dumb neighbour on the sitcom that made it OK to wear a pocket protector and tape on your glasses.

2 The Lone Ranger and his sidekick, Captain Jack Sparrow. I have a confession to make. I am old enough to remember when the Lone Ranger was my most favourite show in the whole world... on radio. And then one day, my dad came home with a TV. I thought it was a miracle that I could see Tonto — for real. But the real miracle is the new movie version and Johnny Depp

THE METRO LIST
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

who has turned the painfully earnest Tonto into a wisecracking, walking totem pole of comic relief with a dead bird on his head. Not just feathers, mind you, but the whole bird.

3 The ballad of Edward Snowden. They seek him here, they seek him there, that damned elusive whistle blower. Now, the next place we may see him is on the big screen. Director Phillip Noyce has a novel way of, er, looking at it: "A movie that's playing out before our eyes, even though we can't see anything." Of course, Snowden's 'look' will undergo a transformation. Noyce wants Liam Hemsworth in the starring role, who looks more like the hunk in the Hunger Games than Snowden, who looks more like the unashamedly geeky wunderkid Sheldon Cooper.

Of course, these days, Snowden's more like Waldo, as in "where's Waldo?"

4 Home-grown Helter Skelter. All terrorists aren't created equal. Some, like the self-styled Surrey-based jihadists Mujahid and Pirate NinjaCat, a.k.a. John Nuttall and his sidekick Amanda Kordy, don't have the jam to clean the cat litter box. According to one erstwhile acquaintance, the couple, who were arrested for trying to plant Canada Day improvised explosive devices at the B.C. Legislature, were even thrown out of a local mosque — for worshipping weirdly. They lived in complete squalor and appear to spend their spare time paint-balling the TV into submission.

5 You think that was weird? How about this? Two generations of really bad tunes came together over the weekend when Chad Kroeger, the main perp of Nickelback, and one-hit wonder Avril Lavigne got married in secret in Mandelieu in the south of France. There was actually no reason for them to get married in secret. It's not like they were Kim Kardashian or somebody really, like, famous.

Teacher, disco garb stayin' alive

Texas man's school photos go viral

Dallas teacher Dale Irby and his disco-style wardrobe are rocking the Internet.

For 40 years, the recently retired Texas school teacher has worn the same outfit in every school picture: A groovy polyester shirt and toffee-coloured V-neck wool sweater vest.

"Hilarious," was a word often repeated on Twitter as his story went viral. "Can't stop smiling," said another.

Irby, who lives in Garland, Texas, recently retired as a gym teacher from Prestonwood Elementary School, along with his wife, Cathy, whom he met when they were first-year teachers in Dallas back in 1973.

The 63-year-old Irby has dressed the same way for every yearbook photo since that year, and the images of him in those treasured garments have shot around the world on the Internet and on YouTube.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

From embarrassing to hilarious

In 1974, Irby was embarrassed to discover that he had mistakenly worn the same shirt and vest as he did the year before. However, his wife dared him to repeat. Then Irby thought five would be funny. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

See my vest

"After five pictures ... it was like: 'Why stop?'"

Dale Irby told the Dallas Morning News

Hanging up sweater vest for good

Then five turned into 40. Even as he got older, the sweater and shirt combo still fit. "Uh, yeah, if I suck it in a little," he said.

Irby says the sweater vest and shirt will also retire — to the back of his closet.

Summer's more sweltering days lurk around the corner, so why not prep for a little mobile gaming in air conditioned spaces? Here are three gems from June.

Icebreaker - A Viking Voyage:

Backed by Angry Birds publisher Rovio's imprimatur, Icebreaker bravely enters the crowded physics puzzler field. While it's easy to tell the game is built on the shoulders of early classics like Cut The Rope, it quickly blooms into a wickedly funny world of varied levels with biting winds, dark magic and troll snot among their hazards. (iOS and Android/$0.99)

Home:

It's astonishing how unnerving the atmosphere in this horror game is, given the deliberately primitive graphics. Paired with a decent set of headphones, Home's series of disturbing discoveries should keep you gripped from the first second. A caveat if you're still angry about The Sopranos finale: The story design is intentionally vague and the ending provides more questions than answers. (iOS/$2.99)

Agricola:

The latest board game to get some digital love, Agricola puts you in charge of a farm. Keep your family from starving and figure out your livestock strategy (there's an action-packed term) to keep ahead of your rivals. The tutorial may be a bit dizzying for noobs, but Agricola is well worth the brain power. (iOS/$6.99)

RE: It's A Slippery Slope, Not All Cooking Oils Are Created Equal, Published July 2

As a practicing holistic nutritionist, I found this article very misleading, and confusing. I have different opinions than the writer of this article. One such difference is the statement written about soy, corn and canola oil. As a holistic nutritionist, I would tell my clients to avoid these oils. They are all GMO, genetically modified.

There are several studies that suggest GMOs can cause tumor growth and cancer.

"In fact, double stranded RNA (dsRNA) GMO created by Monsanto can allegedly turn off certain gene signals and turn on others. In mice who were fed this dsRNA, the liver completely changed its cell organization, and the mice grew strangely. The same effects were found when these dsRNA were added to human cells. Allegedly, this GMO food can be turning on cancer causing genes," says Natural Society. Kathy Maraz RHN, Vancouver

At the halfway point of the year, Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin pick their favourite flicks of the last six months

Richard: Mark, it's been a weird year. Things that I was really looking forward to, like Melissa McCarthy and Jason Bateman in Identity Thief, fell really flat, but other things like the off-the-radar The Purge turned out to be really good fun. From the early part of the year I'd choose Warm Bodies, a zom com that is essentially one joke — the zombie as a metaphor for awkward teenager love — but a pretty good one and well performed. What about you?

Mark: Two blockbuster movies impressed me: Iron Man 3 and Star Trek: Into Darkness. But my two favourite movies of the year were Side Effects and Trance. Both were Hitchcockian thrillers that started out as one thing but cleverly morphed into something else. But I've always enjoyed mind games, Richard, as any of my detractors will tell you.

RC: I liked both Side Effects and Trance, but as far as thrillers go my pick of the litter would be The Bay, an eco-apocalypse horror movie from Diner director Barry Levinson. He assembles an eye-catching array of fictional news footage, phone camera images, surveillance videotape, Skype and "homemade" videos to tell the story and it will make you think twice before ever drinking tap water again!

MB: The Bay was interesting, although unfortunate product placement for the store. I liked The Great Gatsby a lot, although I knew the story all too well. The Place Beyond The Pines is an ambitious sprawling movie that has three connecting stories. The whole is less than the sum of its parts but most of it is worth its loooooong running time.

RC: My two favourite films so far this year have been Frances Ha and Before Midnight. Frances Ha stars the transcendent Greta Gerwig as a 20-something dancer trying to make it in New York City. Warm and charming, it captures the vagaries of a mostly rudderless life. Another movie I hope to watch over and over is Before Midnight, the third film in the Ethan Hawke-Julie Delpy relationship trilogy. Done with humour, heart and pathos, often in the same scene, it is a poignant farewell to two characters who grew up in front of us.

MB: I liked Frances Ha and I think it's the breakthrough role Gerwig has been looking for. But it was very similar to last year's Lola Versus, which I found funnier though not as artful.

Documentary

Twenty Feet From Stardom

Director. Morgan Neville

Morgan Neville's entertaining documentary throws a spotlight on musicians who usually stay in the shadows: it's an ode to the unique art of backup singing. Interviews with pioneers like Merry Clayton and Darlene Love set the scene in the mid-60s, when harmonizing girl groups were in vogue; from there, the film traces the evolution of supporting vocals through the rock and soul movements of the '70s and its disappearance in the present day. There are some big stars on hand (Bruce Springsteen, Sting, Mick Jagger) but Neville ensures the focus remains on his unsung heroes. ADAM NAYMAN

Comedy/Drama

The Way, Way Back

Directors. Nat Faxon, Jim Rash

Stars. Steve Carell, Sam Rockwell, Liam James

This new dramedy starring Steve Carell, Sam Rockwell and Canadian actor Liam James sets the story in a beach resort where an introverted 14-year-old is trapped in a world of adults. It doesn't add anything new to the coming-of-age genre, but what it does, it does really well. The movie's main strength lies in the interesting way the characters interact. It's more than just another study of awkward teen behaviour. It's a sweet movie with genuine laughs. RICHARD CROUSE

Drama

Museum Hours

Director. Jim Cohen

Stars. Mary Margaret O'Hara, Bobby Sommer

Starring Canadian singer-songwriter Mary Margaret O'Hara as a tourist who happens upon a kindly guard at Vienna's art-filled Kunsthistorisches Museum, this contemplative drama is the cinematic equivalent of a sluggish ramble around a quiet old gallery. Since the characters spend a good amount of time considering art pieces, many summer audiences may get anxious for a bit of action, but Jem Cohen's Museum Hours does accomplish a great feat — excavating the art in the most mundane. STEVE GOW

Comedy

I'm So Excited

Director. Pedro Almodovar

Stars. Javier Camara, Cecilia Roth

Possessing a terribly incongruous mix of tones, I'm So Excited feels like a rare misstep for feted Spanish filmmaker Pedro Almodovar. A malfunction puts a passenger plane in jeopardy as it prepares for an emergency landing. Inside a trio of campy male flight attendants do their best to put all at ease, often through drink and drugs. At first the bawdy one-liners are a refreshing change from Hollywood's recent parade of awkward, mean-spirited comedy. But the jokes and the sexual innuendo soon grow thin. IAN GORMELY

When the rivers run red with blood

Byzantium. Filmmaker Neil Jordan found out you don't need special effects to turn an Irish waterfall to blood—just bagfuls of red vegetable dye

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Neil Jordan has a simple answer for the question of how much blood is enough for a good vampire movie: "Oh God, as much as possible. I mean, we turned a waterfall red, didn't we?" The Irish director is not using hyperbole, either. During a climactic moment in his latest film, Byzantium, a waterfall on an idyllic Irish island runs red with blood — and not via CGI.

"Everybody thinks everything is a special effect these days, don't they?" Jordan laments.

"There's a vegetable dye you can buy that turns things red. We had climbers climb up and basically unload these bags of vegetable dye, and we did a few tests. We'd tell them by walkie-talkie to release the dye, and four minutes later suddenly the whole thing would turn red.

"It was the most spectacular thing I've ever seen in my life."

The waterfall caps off a very bloody tale indeed, but then when you're following two immortal women (Saoirse Ronan and Gemma Arterton) that feed on the stuff, things tend to get messy.

Though the characters in Byzantium never use the V-word, Jordan admits it's easier to refer to it as a vampire movie. Plus, he's something of an expert on the topic, having also directed 1994's Interview with the Vampire. And he's got plenty to say about what's become of the genre. "The truth is a lot of vampire movies are really bad, you know? It's very hard to make a vampire film scary," he says.

"When I was doing Interview with the Vampire, Warner Bros. kept saying, 'You've got to make it scary.' It was David Geffen saying it, actually. I said, 'David, this is the story told from the point of view of people who are dead. Nothing could harm them. It's going to be creepy, but it's not going to be scary.'"

When asked what current vampire-centric titles he appreciates, Jordan name-checks Buffy the Vampire Slayer and, surprisingly, the Twilight series — well, the films, at least.

"I know the Twilight series has gone nuts and everybody's saying they're friendly vampires or what-

Longtime fascination

Director Neil Jordan has had a connection to vampire tales from a very young age, thanks to his Dublin roots. "I grew up in Dublin, in Dollymount, and even to see a vampire movie at the cinema, I had to cycle past the house that Bram Stoker lived in," he remembers. "It's on a semicircular square called the Crescent in the marina, and it was a series of early Victorian houses. The paint was all peeling at the time and they were the creepiest places, just terrified the life out of me. It must've done some damage to me as a kid."

ever," he says.

"The first of those movies — that's the only one I saw — I thought it wasn't a bad film, and I thought it was quite justifiable to take the vampire idiom and make it about teenage sexuality. That's the interesting thing about the vampire genre is you can make it into so many different things. Anne Rice turned vampires into emblems of so many different things: forbidden sexuality, gay iconography and things like that. Vampire movies have become these giant metaphors."

Gemma Arterton stars in Byzantium. HANDOUT

Whether it's in the studio or the smoke circle, Parquet Courts are in session. KEVIN PEDERSON

Parquet Courts are stoners but far from those slackers

Interview. New album Light Up Gold is showing a little of that prolific work ethic, as their latest effort is an exhilarating punk rush of excellence

PAT HEALY
Metro World News

Parquet Courts are stoners. Make no mistake about that. The Brooklyn-based quartet don't mind that press outlets have focused on this not-so-secret fact, revealed in song titles like, Stoned and Starving, Donuts Only and Yr No Stoner, on the band's excellent Light Up Gold album from earlier this year. But what bugs the band is when people throw around the term slacker.

"I think it's kind of a romantic image to conjure up

Lighting up, working hard

"The slacker thing really gets on my nerves ... We work extremely hard and as prolific as I am, I don't think that the slacker title is appropriate."

Andrew Savage
Singer and guitarist
Parquet Courts

this view of us as these vagabond stoner/slacker dudes just traversing the U.S. and just barely scraping by," says singer and guitarist Andrew Savage. "But the slacker thing really gets on my nerves because it kind of implies that we don't work very hard, when in reality, this is one of the hardest working bands I've ever seen. We work extremely hard and as prolific as I am, I don't think that the slacker title is appropriate."

Light Up Gold showcases

that prolific work ethic, as the 15 songs bleed together in an exhilarating punk rush of 35 minutes. Twin trebled guitars sound like woven rays of sun, while the rhythm section sounds like a dinosaur rooting through your parents' garage. Savage's words are sometimes silly and often narrative, with a novelist's eye for detail. Parquet Courts jam, but never noodle. This is indie rock the way it used to be.

"People's curiosity has waned and they stopped kind of digging for stuff like that," says Savage when we bring up the dearth of current bands who draw from the likes of Pavement and Guided by Voices. "But I don't think it stopped. I think it just stopped being presented to people in the way that it was and the mainstream top 40 indie, to me it resembles kind of more easy listening and commercial pop music, so it's not coming through the same venues, but it never stopped."

New music. Rapper Mac Miller matures, turns heads with his new album Watching Movies with the Sound Off

Mac Miller had a quick decision to make when Kanye West jumped the street date for his new album: Move his Watching Movies with the Sound Off to a different week or stand firm in the face of Yeezus. In the end, it was a simple decision. The album was too good to wait.

"I initially just wanted my own space for my album to drop and then Kanye's date came out and it was kind of like, 'OK, that's probably the worst person to go up against

More than meets the eye

Miller says the album's depth and quality reflects two years of warp-speed development

- Quote. "There was always a lot more to me than what people wanted to say."

to drop an album," Miller said. "But I'm one of those weird everything-happens-for-a-reason type people, so I felt that maybe there's a reason I was dropping the same day as Kanye, and I think there was. I think it let people know that I have a long career ahead of me and I wasn't just anything that people put me as before."

Miller entered the Billboard 200 at No. 3 behind West and J. Cole, and much of the discussion that week revolved around Miller as interloper. How did Mac Miller find his way into the top three on the biggest rap release week of the year? And just how many sales did he take from West?

"It's dope," Miller said of the attention while eating curry backstage before his show Monday night at Marathon Music Works in Nashville. Miller sold more than 101,000 copies of the woozy, moody Movies, which features appearances or production work from Diplo, Flying Lotus, Earl Sweatshirt, Jay Electronica, Action Bronson, Schoolboy Q and Ab-Soul.

It's a redefining moment for the 21-year-old Miller. Cast as the goofy sidekick of Wiz Khalifa and known for his novelty song-turned-celebrity beef with Donald Trump, the quality of Miller's second album is making detractors re-examine his music.

Pitchfork called it "a quantum leap in artistry" and it's gotten solid reviews all around. He even outscores Cole on Metacritic.

Miller alludes to his public perception on the album in a skit at the end of Red Dot Music. He allows battle rapper Loaded Lux to go off on him for 90 seconds. Lux begins with "You was Cheesy Mac with the easy raps ..." and it goes downhill from there.

"It kind of shows you that stuff like that doesn't matter," Miller said. "He ethered me on my own album, but the album still plays."

Dos and don'ts

Are you a first-time attendee to Summerlicious? Or maybe you are a veteran visitor to this annual two-week event, where diners can rely on 196 of the city's restaurants to supply prix fixe menus for between $25 to $45. Here are some handy dos and don'ts to make the most of this event.

- DO show up on time. "It's a busy time of year for most participating restaurants," said Edward Levesque, owner of Leslieville's Edward Levesque's Kitchen. "I can only hold the table for 15 to 20 minutes, maximum. Sometimes people think during Summerlicious the rules are ignored."
- DO be adventurous. "I'm not the most adventurous person in trying new foods, but during Summerlicious I trust the chefs and I've found a few things I'm now a fan of," said Tara Deschamps of Vaughan. She also suggests that, if dining with friends, everyone should order something different to serve as a table sampler.

- DON'T overbook your reservations. "Sometimes the initial excitement over Summerlicious causes many people to make reservations at many places and decide the night of where they're going to go," Levesque said.
- DON'T book last minute. "Plan ahead," Deschamps said. "The day the menus come out I start looking at them and ask my friends what places they would like to try out so we can make reservations. A lot of restaurants book up really quickly so if you book early you won't be disappointed later."

Engineering a menu

Inside scoop. Chefs reveal how they choose what to serve on menus for Summerlicious

ASTRID
VAN DEN BROEK
For Metro

How do restaurants figure out what to feature on their Summerlicious menus? We asked chefs from around the city to give us the scoop.

At Edward Levesque's Kitchen, Summerlicious is a time for tried and true dishes.

"I write the Summerlicious menu with what I expect to be coming up from the garden at that time," said owner Levesque. "I'm just coming back from the farm now and I've got six bushels of food to go on the menu."

That said, Levesque's go-to Summerlicious item is its steak frites dish featuring a locally-sourced steak.

Over at Mildred's Temple Kitchen, the dishes that make the cut for Summerlicious are all about representing the restaurant appropriately, said owner Kevin Gallagher.

"I've heard people say that sometimes the portions they get at some participating restaurants are smaller than what they'd normally be, which isn't really a good way to promote yourself. So we try to make sure people get a pretty regular representation of the size and the quality of our food," said Gallagher, who added that its most popular items on Summerlicious include a hamburger with tomato relish and tobacco-friend onions, as well as a vegetarian curried cauliflower quinoa dish.

"We often feature our most popular dishes on our menu because we know people will come wanting them. We want people to be able to relate to the kind of cuisine we represent."

You have to design a menu that you think will work for the largest cross-section of guests, said Michael Bonacini, a partner with the Toronto-based Oliver & Bonacini restaurants, which operates establishments such as Bannock, Jump and Luma.

"You try to balance a menu so you have X number of items coming from the cold kitchen, the grill, sauce line — depending on how one's kitchen is made up," he said.

Bonacini added that menu items tend to be straightforward and not high on the allergen scale — think tuna, chicken and pasta dishes that don't contain items such as peanuts. Speed also counts.

"You always start with a salad and soup as an appetizer because a salad can be done in many different ways and forms and is seasonal, but it can be put out quickly as can a hot or cold soup," he said.

"They need to be dishes that you can get out quickly and as straightforward as possible. It really comes down to a bit of menu engineering."

I'll be there for you: Perry pays it forward by opening home to addicts

Matthew Perry knows what it's like to hit rock bottom. He famously struggled with alcoholism and drug addiction during his Friends heyday. "Eventually things got so bad that I couldn't hide it, and then everybody knew," he told People.

Perry sought help, went to rehab, and got his addictions under control. He's recently decided to help others complete the same journey — he's turning his Malibu beach house into a men's sober living facility called Perry House. "It's nice for people to see that somebody who once struggled in their life is not struggling anymore," he said.

This is an incredibly generous and thoughtful gesture by the actor. Hopefully the neighbours will agree. Something tells me that Malibu beach dwellers aren't used to living next to rehab facilities.

Unlike the state of California, Barrowman wasted no time

John Barrowman, star of Doctor Who and Torchwood, married Scott Gill, his partner of 20 years, following the Supreme Court's decision to overturn the Defense of Marriage Act and Proposition 8 last week.

In a video posted before the ceremony, the couple are in the car on their way to tie the knot, looking exhausted but happy. "Thank you, Supreme Court; about time you made it legal," Barrowman said. "See you after the ceremony!"

The newlyweds posted a photo of themselves holding their wedding certificate on WhoSay. "We are now legally married. Thanks for all your great wishes. Jb and Scott," they said.

Mile-high heartbreaker: Sleeping star still gets stares

Call it "the curse of the adorbs." Eddie Redmayne, star of such films as Les Misérables and My Week with Marilyn, is a singing ginger with a cute British accent and a perpetually goofy, lovelorn expression. Of course women flock to him even when he's out cold.

Eddie was on a plane recently and attracted quite the following. "I fell asleep, and when I woke up the man next to me asked, 'Excuse me, are you someone important?' I must have looked confused. He explained: 'I'm asking because the stewardesses came over and were watching you sleep,'" he told GQ.

Don't get a big head about it, Eddie. They'd probably do that for any member of the Les Misérables cast.

Uncle Jay and Auntie Bey: North West gets nothing but best from parents' pals

North West is sure sitting pretty. Not only are her parents a Kardashian and a Kanye — neither exactly known for being restrained consumers — but she's got family friends like Jay-Z and Beyoncé to spoil her too.

The couple spent thousands on baby gifts for little North, a source close to the couple told the Sun. Gifts reportedly included personalized Christian Dior baby booties and an engraved sterling silver Elsa Peretti Padova baby set from Tiffany's, according to the Sun.

Apparently they brought their own daughter, Blue Ivy, over to meet North, as Blue is "old enough now to be really interested in babies." And, presumably, in plotting world domination with her fellow princess of pop.

Beyoncé and Jay-Z

Unsolved Miss-tery: Crowe tweets quick pic of anonymous bits

These days celebrities tweet nude selfies (either because they got hacked or because they don't know how Twitter works) with such regularity that it's hardly even newsworthy anymore. But Russell Crowe's Twitter mishap was notable in that the nether regions his hacker tweeted weren't his.

Crowe is currently in L.A. with his wife Danielle Spencer and their two sons. The couple reportedly split up last fall, but now things seem to be on the mend — although who knows how Danielle will react to this latest peculiar event.

Yesterday, Crowe's account tweeted a pic of a woman's naked pubic area, which was quickly deleted.

So who was the mystery crotch? It sounds like not even Russell knows.

"Hey, I don't know what that was. Just having a chat with Dani when the phone went ballistic. Sorry, gone," he tweeted immediately after the incident.

California casts a shadow that makes it hard for anyone pressing grapes in other U.S. states to get noticed. So, though wine is made everywhere across the country, odds are you've only had Cali juice.

While there may be more exotic vine-growing locales, one of the coolest is Washington state — especially its Columbia Valley. I'm talking Clint Eastwood cool, folks. The landscape east of the Cascade mountain range reminds me of the backdrop for one of his spaghetti westerns.

How do they grow grapes in a desert? It's all about water management and some innovative cultivation techniques that have secured Washington the number two spot in wine production behind The Golden State.

Single varietal Washington reds typically have a robust, meatiness to their flavours and really show off the rustic personality of their terroir. That attractive forwardness is tempered in mega combinations of grapes, like 14 Hands Vineyards' 2010 Hot To Trot Red Blend ($15.25 to $19.99) — a merlot-led fruit-bomb that will charm grilled meats and open your palate to alternative American wines.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Rewrite the salsa rules

With all of summer's bounty, there are plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables that make fantastic salsas. Scoop them up with chips or crackers, or add them to sandwiches, salads, burgers and tacos.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strawberry-Fennel Salsa

- 1 fennel bulb, chopped
- 1 1/2 cups strawberries, hulled and diced
- 1 medium shallot, minced
- 2 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar or sherry vinegar
- 2 tablespoons fresh tarragon, minced
- 1/2 small hot pepper (such as jalapeno), minced
- Salt and ground black pepper

In a medium bowl, mix together the fennel, strawberries, shallot, vinegar, tarragon and hot pepper. Season with salt and pepper.

Apple-Pepper Salsa

- 1 large crisp-tart apple (such as Fuji or Gala), cored and chopped
- 2 bell peppers (any colour), cored and chopped
- 1 jalapeno pepper, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh mint
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lime juice
- Salt and ground black pepper

In a medium bowl, toss together the apples, peppers, jalapeno, garlic, mint, cilantro, vinegar and lime juice. Season with salt and pepper.

Cucumber-Corn Salsa

- 2 ears of corn, husks and silk removed
- 1 large cucumber, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 2 stalks celery, chopped
- 4 scallions, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill
- Zest and juice of 1 lemon
- Hot sauce, to taste
- Salt and ground black pepper

Cut kernels from ears of corn. To do this, one at a time stand each ear on its wide end and use a knife to saw down the length of the cob. In bowl, combine the corn, cucumber, celery, scallions, dill, and the lemon zest and juice. Season with a splash of hot sauce, salt and pepper.

Just Opened: Food & Liquor

What will you find at Parkdale's newest late night snack spot, dubbed Food & Liquor? Why, just that, naturally. It opened quietly over this past long weekend, and already has a few noteworthy Toronto tastemakers talking it up around town. Located at 1610 Queen St. W., Food & Liquor is helping up the ante on Toronto's late night snack scene.

Just Opened: Sagra

At 240 Annette St. in the Junction you'll find the pristine new gem Sagra, the latest venture from the folks behind The Slow Room café on College Street. With a menu of updated Italian classics — from pizzas to pastas to seafood and beyond — and a beautifully decorated yet cozy dining space, Sagra is bringing the flavours of Italy to Toronto's burgeoning West End.

Just Opened: Bistro 896

The duck may be dead, but it didn't take long for the space left in the wake of Le Canard Mort to be snatched up. Ladies and gents, Leslieville keeps on growing with the addition of Bistro 896, aptly named as you'll find it at 896 Queen St. E. Featuring bistro fare in an intimate environment, Bistro 896 is an East End must-try.

Just Opened: Fare Game

At 195 Carlton St. — where Jam Café pleased patrons for years — you'll now find the newly opened Fare Game. Branded as continental cuisine with Canadian panache, Fare Game has a heavy focus on, you guessed it, game meats like ostrich, cornish hen, venison and the list goes on. It's a notable new joint in the ever-growing Cabbagetown area.

Summerlicious 2013

The culinary tour-de-force known as Summerlicious is back from Friday through Monday, July 15. In case you're unaware (how could you be?), Summerlicious presents us hungry Torontonians with the opportunity to test out three-course, prix fixe menus at 196 participating restaurants. Check out notable.ca for the top 10 reservations you need to get.

Ad Club's Summer Party

On Thursday at Sky Bar at Government (132 Queens Quay E.), join hundreds of advertising, marketing and media mavens at the annual Ad Club Summer Party. This summer's shindig — cheekily themed around County Fairs — sees drinks, late night snacks and networking aplenty for those in the ad or ad related fields.

Victory always in sight for Lisicki

Wimbledon. Giant slayer rallies to beat Radwanska; will face Bartoli in women's final Whether in a match, a set, a game — or even within a single point — Sabine Lisicki simply cannot be counted out.

Especially at Wimbledon, where she is one victory from becoming a Grand Slam champion.

Fashioning the same sort of comeback she used to eliminate defending titleist Serena Williams at the All England Club, the 23rd-seeded Lisicki reached her first major final by edging No. 4 Agnieszka Radwanska of Poland 6-4, 2-6, 9-7 in a compelling, back-and-forth match on Thursday.

"I just fought with all my heart," said Lisicki, who twice was two points away from losing to 2012 runner-up Radwanska.

"I believed that I could still win, no matter what the score was."

On Saturday, Lisicki will face 15th-seeded Marion Bartoli of France, who earned a berth in her second Wimbledon final with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over No. 20 Kirsten Flipkens of Belgium.

It's only the second time in the 45-year Open era that two women who have never won a Grand Slam trophy will play for the championship at the grass-court tournament.

"In the beginning of the tournament, no one, I think, (expected) those names in the semis or in the finals," Radwanska said.

That's for sure.

In 11 of the past 13 years, one Williams sister or the other — and sometimes both — reached the final at the All England Club.

This year, five-time champion Venus sat out because of a back injury, while five-time champion Serena's 34-match winning streak ended with a loss to Lisicki in Monday's fourth round.

NHL. Bruins trade young star to Stars in seven-player deal

Tyler Seguin is headed to the Dallas Stars in a trade less than a week after Boston's general manager criticized the former No. 2 overall pick as needing to be a "better pro."

Seguin was sent to the Stars on Thursday in a seven-player deal also highlighted by steady forward Loui Eriksson joining the Eastern Conference-champion Bruins.

man Joe Morrow.

It was the first major move for new Stars general manager Jim Nill, who addressed the team's need at centre with Seguin, the No. 2 pick in 2010, and Peverley. The trade will allow Dallas's leading scorer, Jamie Benn, to move to his more natural spot at wing.

"Tyler is a dynamic player that will be a part of our core group for a long time to come," Nill said. "A player at his age, position and talent level (is) extremely difficult to acquire and we're thrilled to bring him into our organization."

Seguin, 21, won the Stanley Cup with the Bruins as a rookie and was their leading scorer and an all-star a year later. He dropped to a tie for third on the team in scoring during this past season's run to the Stanley Cup finals. Boston lost to Chicago in six games.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

You know better than to ignore your instincts but not everyone is as switched on as you and a friend or relative is going to make a major mistake today. Be there for them.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Don't worry if what you do today does not meet universal approval. If you aimed to please everyone, you would not get much done. And it would give them something else to moan about.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Words can hurt as well as heal, so think before you speak today or you could severely bruise a loved one's ego. Having said that, don't go to the other extreme and say nothing at all.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Your world looks pretty good at the moment but don't let that lull you into a false sense of security. Someone you do business with may try to rip you off over the next 24 hours.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Some people you have been dealing with lately are clearly greedy, but that does not mean you have to sink to their level. Protect your interests but do so according to the rules.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Unexpected events will throw you out of your stride today but in the greater scheme of things it's no big deal, so stay calm and stick with the program. You know what your target is — keep moving.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You will find it easy enough to explain your point of view today but that does not mean everyone will understand. The sad fact is not everyone shares your quickness of mind.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Anything is possible if you believe in it enough. The danger today is that certain well-meaning people may try to persuade you to lower your sights a little. Aim ever higher.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

There are so many good things going on in your world, so many opportunities waiting to be exploited, that it would be a crime to just sit there and do nothing. What is it that would please you the most?

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Pluto in your sign places the focus on wealth, which means you need to take care when dealing with money matters. Don't think about how much you might make, think about how much you might lose.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Why is it that only you can see the answers? Why is it that everyone around you is blind to common sense? If you think like that then maybe the problem is really with you. People are different.

Pisces

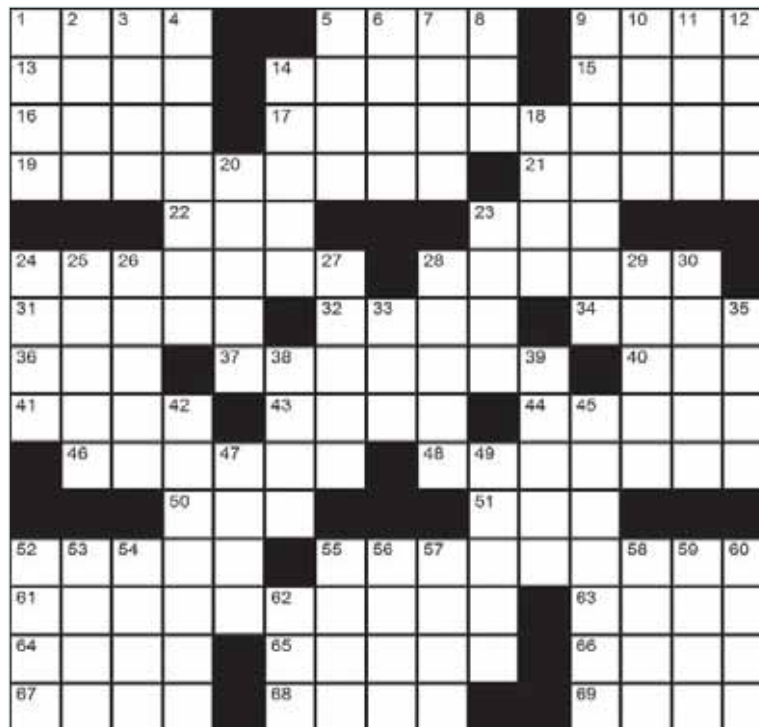

Feb. 20 - March 20

Love. Laughter. Learning. If you have these three things in your life then you are fortunate. What you learn today will make you laugh and the more you laugh the more you will love fellow man. SALLY BROMPTON
